SHAR MOTTOU

THURSDAY MORNING, JULY 29, 1858. COMMUNICATED.

LINES ON A THIEF-BY LILIAN. I beg you, good people, draw near, My story surpasses belief, Yet deign for a moment to hear, And assist me to catch a stray thief Have you chanced a fair damsei to meet, Adorned like an angel of light;

In a robe that flowed down to her feet, No snow on the mountains so white? Silver flowers bespangled her shees, Golden locks on her shoulders were spread, Her waist had a girdle of bine,

And a fairy head dress had her head. Her steps an impression scarce leave, She bounds o'er the meadows so soon; Her smile is like autumn's clear eve, And her look as serene as the moon. She seems to have nothing to blame, Deceitless and meek as a dove;

But there lives not a thief of such fame, She has pilfered below and above. Her cheeks have the blushes of day, Her neck has undone the swan's wing, Her breath has the odours of May, And her eyes have the dews of the spring.

She has robbed of its crimson the rose, She has dared the carnation to strip, As the bee who has plundered them knows, And would fain fill his hive at ber lip She has stolen for her forehead so even,

All beauty by sea and by land, She has all the fine azure of heaven, In the veins of her temple and hand. Yes, yes, she has ransacked above, She has beggared both nature and art, She has got all we honour and love,

And from me she has pilfer'd my heart. Bring her home bonest friends, bring her home, And set her down safe at my door, Let her ever my companion become, And I swear she shall wander no more.

Bring her home, and I will give a reward, Whose value can never be told, More precious than all you regard, More in worth than a handful of gold.

A reward such as none but a dunce Such as none but a madman would miss; Oh! ves, I will give you for once, From the charmer you bring me-a kiss!

MR. BLIFKINS'S BABY. That first baby was a great institution .-

As soon as be came into this "breathing world," as the late W. Shakspeare bas it, he took command in our house. Everything was subservient to him. The baby was the balance wheel that regulated everything. He 1 regulated the temperature, he regulated the food, he regulated the servents, he regulated | Tickets $15-Halves $7 50-Quarters $3.75 me. For the first six wouths of that precious existence he had me up on an average six times a night. "Mr Blifkins," says my wife, "bring that light here, do; the baby looks strangely; I'm so afraid it will have a fit!" Of course the lamp was brought, and of course the baby lay sucking his fist like a little white bear, as he was. "Mr. Blifkins," said my wife, "I think I feel a draught of air; I wish you would get up and see if the window is not open a little, because baby might get sick." Nothing was the matter

Blitkins," says my wife, just as I was going to sleep again, "that lamp, as you have placed it, shines directly in baby's eyes-strange that you have no more consideration." I arranged the light and went to bed again .-Just as I was dropping to sleep again, "Mr. Blifkins," said my wife, "did you think to buy that broma to-day for the baby? "My dear," said I, "will you do me the injustice to believe that I could overlook a matter so essential to the comfort of that inestimable child?" She apologised very bands mely but made her anxiety the scape goat. I forgave her, and without saying a word more to her I addressed myself to sleep. "Mr. Blifkios," said my wife, shaking me, "you must not snore so, you will wake the baby." "Just su-just so." said I, half asleep, thinking I was Solon Shingle. "Mr. Blifkins," said my wife, "will you get up and hand me the warm gruel from the nurse lamp for baby?--the dear child! if it wasn't for his mother I don't know what he would do. How can you sleep 80, Mr. Blifkins?" "I suspect, my dear, said I, "that it is because I am tired." "Oh, it's very well for you men to talk about being tired," said my wife; "I dont know what you would say if you had to toil and drudge like a poor wooman with a baby." I tried to soothe her by telling her she had no patience at all, and got up for the posset .--Having aided in answering the baby's requirements, I stepped into bed again, with the hope of sleeping. "Mr. Blifkins," said said she in a louder key. I said nothing .--"Ob, dear!" said that estimable woman, in great apparent anguish, "how can a man, who has arrived at the honor of a live taby of his own, sleep, when he don't know that the dear creature will live till morning?" remained silent, and, after a while, deeming that Mrs. Blifkins had gone to sleep, I stretched my limbs for repose. How long I slept I don't know, but I was awakened by a forious jab in the forehead by some sharp instrument. I started up, and Mrs. Blifkins was sitting up in the bed adjusting some portion of the baby's dress. She bad, in a state of semi-somnolence, mistaken my head other ticket being warranted to draw $10, defor the pillow, which she customarily used termined by the number drawing the Capital for a necturnal pincushion. I protested against such treatment in somewhat rourd terms, pointing to several perferations in my forehead. She told me I should willingly bear such trifling things for the sake of the baby. I insisted upon it that I didn't think my duty as a parent to that young immertal required the surrender of my forehead for a pincushion. This was one of many nights passed in this way. The truth was, that the baby was what every other man's first baby is, an autocrat-absolute and unlimited .-

it to us the other day.
